Museum to host antique appraisal

The Cynthiana-Harrison County Museum will celebrate its 20th anniversary this year.

Plans are to have a special event each month in honor of the milestone.

March will feature local auctioneer and antique expert Bobby Lake.

Lake will host a three-hour session in Antique Road Show-fashion at the museum on Walnut Street.

According to museum volunteer Mary Grable, residents are invited to bring one item for Lake's professional opinion about the value and possible origin of the item.

"Those three hours will go fast," Grable said, noting that anyone who is planning to bring an item to Lake should call ahead to make an appointment.

There is no cost for Lake's assessment.

To schedule an appointment, call Grable at 234-6541 or Kenny Simpson at 588-0081.

No spring break for HC students

In a special session last Wednesday afternoon, the Harrison County School Board voted to use spring break as make-up days for school missed due to winter weather in January and February.

Harrison County students have missed 22 days as of March 5, the most in the past 20 years. The closest number of missed days during that time frame is a three-way tie at 17 in the 1993-94, 1995-96 and 2009-10 school years.

In order for Harrison County Schools to meet their required 170 six-hour days and also end school on June 6, Dotson said the school has to use spring break.

School will also be in session on March 21 and 28.

If no other days are missed, the school system will still observe Memorial Day as a holiday weekend, Superintendent Andy Dotson said.

Woman jailed for false tale of her abduction

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

A common lie fabricated by a Harrison County woman involving herself and her 14-month-old baby, went well beyond the plight of the "Boy Who Cried Wolf" fable.

The lie escalated into a five-day search involving state, county and University of Kentucky law enforcement officers, caused the temporary lockdown of a major Lexington medical center and concluded with the arrest of the woman on two counts of lying to authorities.

On Saturday evening, March 1, Anthony Barnes of 113 W. Pike St. filed a missing persons report with the Harrison County Sheriff's Department for his wife, Rebecca Barnes, and their infant son.

During the ensuing investigation, concern for the safety of the mother and child became even more acute when Andy Barnes received a text message from his daughter-in-law saying, "please help me i want to com home dont know where I'm at...i love anthony...i'm scared...i was forced to leave at gun."

According to a report filed by Deputy Sheriff Robert Peak, the Sheriff's office received assistance from the Kentucky State Police to trace Rebecca Barnes' text messages.

Information indicated that she was somewhere in Pulaski County. Because of a weak cell signal in the area, there was no way to pinpoint her exact location, Peak said.

As a courtesy, the Pulaski County Sheriff's Department made a general search of the area but were unable to locate the missing woman or her baby.

Five days later, Rebecca and her baby appeared at the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center where her mother was scheduled for surgery.

Unable to locate her family at the hospital, Barnes called her husband and said they were at UK hospital. UK Police were alerted that a reportedly missing woman and an abducted infant were inside the medical center.

Because the report involved an infant, campus police ordered a temporary lockdown of the hospital until they could secure the infant.

Anthony Barnes had been granted emergency custody of the child during the time period that mother and child were reported missing.

Following the resolution of the missing persons case, Rebecca Barnes made a subsequent statement to Dep. Peak regarding her whereabouts. In See ABDUCTION, page 3

2014 Humanitarian Award goes to

'My dear Watson'

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

On Tuesday night, several dozen people paid tribute to the latest recipient of The Clarence Horn Humanitarian Award, Margaret Watson.

Tributes were offered in her honor from former Cynthiana Mayor Virgie Wells, district judge David Melcher, Sally Kinney, Earl McNabb and Watson's partner at the food pantry, Marilyn Wash.

State Rep. Tom McKee

presented her special recognition for her tireless community service work from the Kentucky House of Representatives and named her a Kentucky Colonel.

One of the highlights of the evening was a special presentation of Watson's three favorite hymns performed by Wash and Carol Hyatt. Everyone joined in on the final hymn.

It was a special evening and one that Watson sincerely appreciated. But true to her nature, she spent more time crediting others than herself and thinking about what she had to do the next day.

Last weekend, Watson, director of the Harrison County Food Pantry, volunteered her time and her celebrated sewing skills altering prom dresses for teenage girls at the annual Cinderella's Closet ministry at Northeast See WATSON, page 7

Commission proposes $168,000 purchase for parking lot

By BECKY BARNES, EDITOR

As of Monday afternoon there was no signed contract for the City of Cynthiana to purchase two buildings at the corner of Pike and Walnut streets.

However, the commission authorized the mayor to respond to an offer for the purchase of real estate. That authorization was given unanimously at the commission's regular meeting on Feb. 25.

On March 5, a special meeting was held with the agenda to include a discussion of the future of downtown Cynthiana and to consider the purchase of real property and a possible vote on the purchase of real property.

Commissioner Gary Bruner made a motion to rescind the commission's authorization for the mayor to pursue the property deal. That motion was seconded by Commissioner Roger Slade, whose business is across the street from the property, which now houses The Rock.

However, Bruner's motion was not approved with Mayor Steve Moses and Commissioners Billy Grayson and Jack Keith opposing.

"I have changed my mind," Slade said. "It may not be the best way to go and I hope this doesn't stifle progress."

"Since the Feb. 25 meeting, we have all gained some information, some thoughts and concerns from the downtown business owners," Bruner said. "We can make a decision and realize it's

Five years ago their daughter, Kayla, was killed in a car accident.

The latest obstacle for the family is the diagnosis of Frank's Stage 3 esophageal cancer.

Just one year ago, on March 14, Frank was having difficulty swallowing and the doctor recommended that he have his esophagus stretched.

However, after only 20 minutes, the procedure was halted and the Poteets were told the doctors needed more testing.

Two Harrison County students take home prizes in statewide contest

The Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts, in partnership with the Kentucky Farm Bureau, honored the winners of the 2013 Jim Claypool Art and Conservation Writing Contest.

The annual contests -- an art contest for students in grades one through five and a writing contest for students in grades six through 12 -- allow them to use the knowledge they have gained about the environment and transform it into creative art work and essays. The awards ceremony was held Feb. 27 in conjunction with Biodiversity Day in Kentucky, which promotes awareness and stewardship of the state's biologically diverse ecosystem.

The contests' theme, Mission: H2O, helped students from across the state learn more about the quality and quantity of clean water in Kentucky.

Madison Kellione, a seventh-grader at Harrison County Middle School, was recognized as the state second place winner in the writing contest.

Victoria Gasser, a fifth-grader at St. Edward Catholic School, competed in the art contest. She was chosen as the Area 5 winner.

Both students were awarded a monetary gift from Kentucky Farm Bureau. Kellione, as one of the six statewide winners, also received a copy of "A Guide to the Freshwater Mussels of Kentucky" from the Kentucky State Nature Preserves Commission.

The awards were presented by Jeff Harper of Kentucky Farm Bureau, David Rowlett of Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts and Pamela Wood of Kentucky Conservation Commission. The students will also receive recognition on the local level from the Harrison County Conservation District.

Thanks for allowing the students access the facilities. After the trip, a student observed that all of the sciences were applied by the workers at the treatment plant. A very astute comment.

harriCYN Community Theatre presents 'Steel Magnolias' March 27-30

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

Critical to the success of an ensemble show like "Steel Magnolias," the next harriCYN Community Theatre (hCT) production coming this March, is the chemistry between the actors.

But for this particular production, it was equally important for its two directors, Nell Ann Gossett and Jody Hendricks, to blend their skills throughout a challenging winter production schedule.

To the best of their knowledge, "Steel Magnolias" may be the first hCT play to feature two people in directors' chairs.

Gossett brings several years of experience as a director of plays, pageants and stage events to the mix. For Hendricks, Magnolias is his first directing gig, although he has been a performer in several features.

According to Gossett, though, her co-director has brought natural leadership skills to the chair as well as a good sense of character development the actors appreciate.

But before embarking on this two-director experiment, neither Gossett nor Hendricks had ever worked as a co-director.

They were uncertain how this collaboration would work, but with mere weeks left before opening night on March 27, they both said the experience was well worth the time.

There have been several advantages to having a co-director: Gossett said that Hendricks brought his unique perspective and insights into the characters that she had not considered.

It helps, of course, that they trust each other. Hendricks and Gossett performed together in the hCT production of "To Kill a Mockingbird" last year. He played the role of Atticus Finch to her portrayal of Scout.

They worked well together in that production and that comfort zone helped make for an excellent collaborative relationship.

"Magnolias is a good show to learn about direction. The message of this show is something worthwhile to me. I was fine with putting other projects on the back burner while this show came together. Ironically, with school being out so much this winter, I had more time than I expected to devote to the show," Hendricks said.

The challenging conditions that plagued cast and crew throughout the rehearsal schedule made it a blessing the play had two directors, Gossett said.

"We had winter storms and bouts of sickness that ran through the cast. We were also working with a shortened rehearsal schedule, too. I'm sure by now that Jody and I played almost every role at some point," Gossett said.

However these instances were far fewer than expected.

"The cast is a determined group of women as strong as the characters they play," Hendricks said.

"When we thought the ice and cold would force some actors to call in, they would show up. They have all been great to work with," Gossett added.

Both credit the cast for what they feel will be one of the most memorable of all the recent hCT productions.

Cast members are:

- Mary June Brunker;
- Rebecca McNeese Fisher;
- Robin Glascock;
- Anne Berry Hodge;
- Rachel Lorenz; and
- Tonya Wagoner.

"This is a true ensemble piece, there is no 'star' in this show. The play, in fact, has six starring roles and the cast has been enthusiastic about delivering a great show," Gossett said.

Hendricks said that directing the play has actually been fairly easy because the actors have all had ideas they wanted to try.

"We haven't had to motivate anyone in this project. We have just given our cast feedback about whether an idea works or not. Their work has made our job loads easier," Hendricks said.

The hCT production of Steel Magnolias will be held at the Rohs Opera House from March 27 - 30.

Opening night on Thursday, March 27, will be a bargain at just $5 a seat. Curtains will open at 7 p.m.

On Friday and Saturday, March 28 and 29, the show will begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be a cost of $10 a ticket for reserved seating.

The final show will be a 2 p.m. Sunday matinee with reserved seating at $10 a ticket.

Tickets can be bought in advance at Biancke's Restaurant in Cynthiana.

Abduction

her statement, Barnes claimed that an armed man in a mask appeared at her home on Saturday afternoon.

The unknown man forced her and her infant into a car. She was blindfolded, she said, and driven to an undisclosed location where she was held captive for five days. During the time of her captivity, she said that neither she nor her child were physically or sexually abused.

She managed to send a lengthy text message, but claimed that she was otherwise prevented from making any communications with her family.

On Wednesday, March 5, she said that her abductor became upset that the baby was not calling him "daddy" and drove her and her baby to a street in downtown Lexington and left them.

With her belongings in tow and her child in a car seat, she was walking to the UK Medical Center when another driver gave the mother and child a ride to the entrance, she said.

When questioned about several discrepancies between her story and the evidence gathered at the Sheriff's department, Barnes broke down and admitted her story was a complete fabrication.

The truth was that she had met a James H. Ballenger, 26, of Somerset through an internet dating service. They had arranged for Ballenger to pick her and her child up. Barnes had told him that she was unmarried and never mentioned anything about her text messages to her family.

Following her admission, the Sheriff's department secured a warrant for her arrest on two charges of falsely reporting an incident which carries a maximum penalty of one-year in jail.

At the same time that she was arrested for the charge, she was also served with divorce papers.

treatments, Frank has lost nearly 70 pounds.

He still goes to work at Toyota where he is a diversity/quality circle coordinator. However, Lisa decided she wanted more encouragement for her husband.

Lisa's mother suggested a card rally where family and friends send cards to cheer up the patient.

That wasn't enough for Lisa. Without Frank's knowledge, Lisa has launched an all out call for 1,000 cards to be sent to her husband.

She set up a Facebook page this week called A 1000 Cards for Frank, where visitors can see video and photographs of the family.

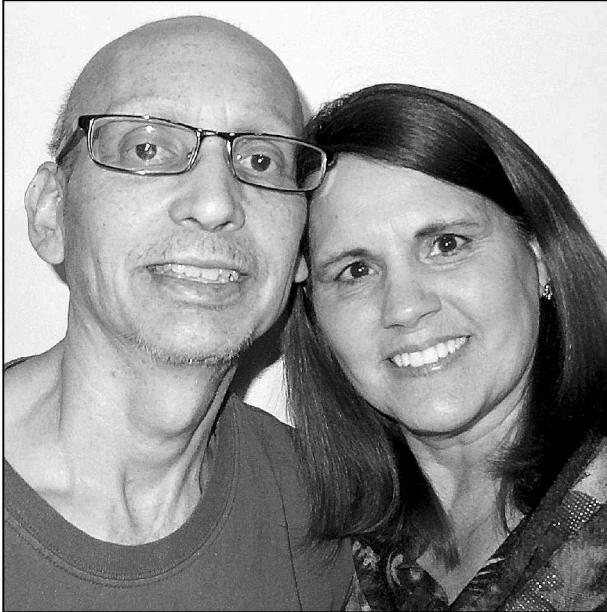

"He needs something to cheer him up," Lisa said. "We're going to see how many we can get him."

Lisa said Frank isn't afraid to die and is content with the idea of being reunited with Kayla. However, he's not giving up without a fight either.

There have been setbacks along his road to better health.

He had to have a large portion of his esophagus removed. The remaining two inches is attached to what is left of his stomach after some of it had to be removed as well.

Within one 12-hour period, Frank had 11 seizures and two strokes. A four-inch blood clot was discovered in his brain.

He also got an infection when his blood thinned too quickly.

On Aug. 29, he was told that there are active cancer cells remaining in his body.

He has been unable to put any weight back on and, in fact, continues to lose weight, which has put his chemotherapy on hold.

Doctors have found another spot of cancer on his liver.

Initially, the Poteets were told that Frank could live three to five years. Three years is the latest projection.

Lisa said it's important for her husband to stay optimistic. That's why she would like to see all the cards coming in the mail.

Frank doesn't Facebook or Twitter, which is another reason for the plan to have cards mailed to their 1606 Dutch Chapel Road address.

The Poteets' children are Joey, who lives in Iowa, Jennifer, a police officer in Bowling Green, and Brandi in Cynthiana. They also have 2-year-old grandson, Tate.

The city commission and the $7,636

In my 35-plus years of covering government meetings, I have to say I left one last week that had me scratching my head and wondering what in the world just happened? What was the purpose of the meeting?

Oh yeah, it's an election year and we're talking political posturing at its best, or worst, however you want to look at it. The Cynthiana City Commission held a special meeting last Wednesday with three items on the agenda.

1. Discussion on future of downtown Cynthiana
2. Consider purchase of real property and possible vote on purchase of real property
3. Possible closed session under 61.810(1)(b)

There were about 15 guests in the audience, both proponents and opponents of the city's plan to purchase the old Newberry building, now home to The Rock Fitness Center, and use it as a $168,000 parking lot.

I use restraint when I'm covering government meetings for the newspaper. I refrain from rolling my eyes or even blurting out my own opinions.

That doesn't mean I don't do those things in my mind, however.

It was obvious that the guests were there to discuss the second item on the agenda. The Rock Parking Lot.

However, there was this ambiguous first agenda item.

The first few speakers stood at the podium ready to talk about the proposal

Becky Barnes
Editor

PARKING SPACE

for the parking lot. Each time, Mayor Steve Moses directed the speaker to hold any discussion until the second agenda item came up.

Was I the only one that felt that the immediate "future of downtown Cynthiana" was the issue at hand?

So, what we had were a few people scrambling to say something about the future of downtown without uttering "parking lot."

When it came time for item No. 2, Commissioner Gary Bruncker asked that the commission rescind a motion from the previous meeting authorizing the mayor to sign a contract that would give the city ownership of The Rock. Commissioner Roger Slade backed up Bruncker on the motion.

Prior to the commission's vote, the same people who spoke during item No. 1 were given their opportunity to voice their concerns or support.

All spoke eloquently and delivered their testimony with passion.

Tuesday was the first time in a very long time that I had to circle the block to find a parking space close to Biancke's. There were plenty of open spaces even during lunch.

I could have parked in front of Uniques or the courthouse, but I circled through the Main Street lot and parked at City Hall.

That was my choice.

I think about the $168,000 and how else that money could be used.

I've heard all the grumblings about the bypass and how that money could have been used to build the park.

Well, no, actually it couldn't.

It was road money and had to be used on roads.

To my knowledge, there are no restrictions on this $168,000.

Have you seen the Main Street lot? It's gravel and it has serious drainage problems.

Have you seen the Pike Street lot at the railroad crossing? I've never known it to be full.

Within 75 yards of either of those two lots, we're going to build another one?

Someone needs to tell the commission and mayor that Field of Dreams was a fictional movie.

Mailbag

Spending for gravel lot makes no sense

To the editor:

As a citizen of Cynthiana, I'm very concerned about the direction of our town. The recent decision to spend over $160,000 to have buildings torn down and a gravel parking lot put in just doesn't make sense to me. When you consider that the chamber building could have been bought by the city for $60,000 and could have housed all city offices and came with a paved parking lot, the logic of spending $100,000 more for just a gravel parking lot escapes me. There is more parking in town now than at any time in our history and we have fewer businesses located there. The parking lots we have now are in horrible disrepair, especially when it rains. Couldn't some of this $160,000 be used to fix those up? Or maybe it could have been used to help locate some business here that would employ people. I was always taught that investments are supposed to make money. What revenue does a parking lot generate? It will never employ anyone and it will never pay taxes. It adds nothing to our city or our economy. What are our leaders thinking?

Shouldn't their first focus be on bringing business to our town? Is adding a gravel lot to downtown the best they can come up with? I think it's time for new leaders!!!

This is an election year and I think it's obvious to all that we need some real change in our town. The way we've been doing things is NOT working.

As we think about the future of our town, I think it's time to elect some new younger leaders who are going to do things differently. We need some fresh ideas because the old ideas are getting us nowhere. The old ideas and leaders are bringing us parking lots with no businesses. There are a lot of younger leaders running for office this year. We need to think about giving our votes to them. Leaders like Roger Slade and James Smith. What they've done at the Rohs Opera House is amazing. I remember going in there when the roof was caving in and there was no heat! If you go down there now, there is life and excitement and people coming from all over the state. These are just two of the young leaders we have in our town that deserve a chance this year.

Story family thanks community for support

To the editor:

I would like to start off by thanking God by blessing us with such a wonderful community, which has shown us so much love and support.

The Team Story Benefit raised $6,000, which will be used to offset expenses with Story's long recovery and medical bills.

I would like to thank Brittany Dargavell, Linda Moore, Faye and Sandy Ritchie, who started the Team Story Benefit. I would also like to thank everyone who prayed for us and helped in any way. It means so much to us how everyone has come together to make this possible. Also thanks to those who donated and bought a Team Story t-shirt in the fall.

Thanks to everyone for their love and support. Love and God's blessings to you all.

Levin idea for amending Constitution has merit

To the editor:

The Liberty Amendments (Restoring the American Republic) by Mark Levin is an alternative method of amending the Constitution. The states are permitted to by-pass Congress by proposing amendments to our Constitution.

Our Constitution has been amended by two-thirds of Congress proposing an amendment that is ratified by three-fourths of the states. The dormant method that has been unsuccessful is two-thirds of the states proposing an amendment that is ratified by three-fourths of the states.

Levin believes our current government has, over time, become an authoritarian, out-of-control Leviathan – dictionary definition: A monstrous sea creature mentioned in the Old Testament or anything unusually large for its kind. Levin proposes 11 amendments, the first of which is "term limits for members of Congress."

He admits that the task is daunting, but it is imperative if we are to be truly free. Levin's recommendation is current, creative, interesting and controversial.

The Harrison County Tea Party will meet Tuesday, March 18, at the Faith Fellowship Hall, US 27 South. The topic will be the Liberty Amendments - a very good topic for those who are interested in our local, county, state and national government.

Journey Medical Mission continues Thursday night clinics

By BECKY BARNES, EDITOR
In the nearly four years since it began, Journey Medical Mission has seen a staggering 710 to 720 patients at least once.
Janie Whitehead, one of the founding members of the Mission and secretary to the board, said she is asked regularly about the Mission's viability after Obamacare when every American is supposed to have health insurance.
"Realistically, not everyone is going to have health insurance," countered Whitehead.
However, she added that they have had more people calling in to the Thursday night free medical clinic to advise volunteers that they have received health insurance. Whitehead affectionately refers to those former patients as graduates.
On any given Thursday night, between 5 and 8 p.m., volunteer health providers and Dr. Henry Norfleet will see between 14 and 17 patients at the free clinic.
In addition to Dr. Norfleet and Dr. Brian Mulberry, Dr. Amy Mashburn, who specializes in the treatment of allergies and asthma, is also there on the third Thursday of every month.

Scott Rawlings, PA, the newest volunteer, is at the clinic on the first Thursday of the month.
The clinic is located at 203 W. Pike St. in what was formerly the Chamber of Commerce building, across from Dailey's Body Shop.
Whitehead said the interior was remodeled to accommodate three examination rooms and a waiting room.
There is also office staff who make appointments. To call for an appointment, call 859-235-0063. Callers may get the answering machine, but Whitehead advises to leave a message and a volunteer will call back.
"Volunteers are the heart of the clinic," Whitehead praised.
There are just a few requirements. All patients seen at Journey Medical Mission must be Harrison County residents and be able to show documentation to support their residence.
Whitehead said usually a driver's license or other photo ID, mail or utility bill will suffice.
Neither narcotics

nor any controlled substance will be prescribed at the clinic for any reason.
Whitehead said the clinic is designed to help those low-income residents of Harrison County who are not eligible for Medicare, Medicaid or private health insurance.

Parking

From PARKING, front page not correct and back up. That's why I made the motion."
Keith voiced his own concerns.
"We need more than a parking lot downtown," he said. "The schematic shows 22 parking spaces; that's a whole lot of money to spend on 22 parking spaces."
Moses said in a telephone interview on Monday that the offer for the lot is $168,000 after demolition. Jeff and Suzanne Taylor, the buildings' owners, would be responsible for tearing down the building and meeting EPA and permit regulations.
Moses called the pending agreement "a very simple contract."
He said either party can back out at any time before demolition begins.
He explained that if it is determined there is asbestos in the building and the cost of abatement is cost prohibitive, the Taylors can back out.

Moses said that there have been some amendments to the original contract and that the commission would have to see the new one before he would sign it.
At the special meeting several downtown business owners addressed the commission about their own concerns.
Stan Lemons, who owns Main Street's Uniques, suggested that if parking hours were enforced there would be plenty of downtown parking.
"I can't imagine why we need more parking with the exception of lunchtime," Lemons said. "If you have the extra funding, why not spend it on what we have? Owning more property only creates more need for more upkeep."

Pat Grenier, Chamber director, told commissioners that using signs to direct visitors to parking would help, as would adding lights to the existing lots.
"I do think if we get more businesses we will need additional parking or more identified parking," Grenier said.
Chamber board member Bob Owen said that Cynthiana is losing businesses and the buildings in downtown are devaluating.
"Landlords are not willing to do anything to empty buildings that are not generating any income," Owen said.
Bonnie Skinner, P&Z director, offered to do a parking study at no charge to the city. She said an additional 16 parking spaces were found downtown during a meeting with state road department supervisor Kevin Florence.

Emily Ammerman, Cynthiana's new Main Street Program director, said she is willing to help property owners pursue grants that will help them with the costs of making repairs to their buildings.
She also noted that any building over 50 years old qualifies and that downtown Cynthiana is considered an historic business district.

"There's not a single business that wouldn't benefit from additional parking," said Dr. Neil Rush. "I'm in favor of preservation, but preservation for preservation's sake is wrong. Look at the ghost towns in New Mexico."
He added that economic development needs to flourish and that additional parking will aid in that goal.
"Sometimes we have to choose between historic preservation and economic preservation," Rush said.

Moses said buying the property is a good idea.
"If we can't get more business downtown, why not apartments?" Moses questioned. "Buying that property is for the future. If we don't do something right away, we might as well quit doing anything."

Explore your health coverage options before it's too late

By Joe Koch, Bourbon Community Hospital CEO

As a result of the Affordable Care Act, nearly 50 million Americans who were previously uninsured have access to affordable healthcare coverage through Health Insurance Marketplaces this year. But the opportunity to sign up for new coverage is quickly coming to a close. The deadline to sign up for coverage in 2014 is Monday, March 31.

We encourage everyone who has not yet explored their coverage options to do so soon. It is critical that you sign up by March 31 to ensure healthcare coverage in 2014. And if you do not have health insurance by March 31, you may have to pay a fee.

Health Insurance Marketplaces allow people to view, compare and purchase various health insurance products. Each plan is different, so it is important that you compare plans to see which best fits your needs. With one application, you can explore the plans available in our state and find out if you qualify for newly available government subsidies to help offset the expense of health insurance. It will also alert you if you qualify for other coverage programs, like Medicaid or the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP).

More good news is that Kentucky has opted to expand its Medicaid program, meaning it has raised the income level for Medicaid eligibility in order to include more people. People who qualify for Medicaid coverage can enroll in this program year-round.

In Kentucky, our marketplace is located online at <https://kyenroll.ky.gov/>. All plans cover the same basic health services, including visits to the doctor, hospitalizations, maternity care, prescriptions, pediatric services, preventive and wellness services and more. In addition, insurance plans cannot deny you coverage or charge you more due to pre-existing health conditions.

One concerning rumor keeping many from exploring their coverage options is that premiums and co-pays are very expensive. The Marketplaces offer coverage options at a variety of price points. Most people who are under the age of 65 and are not eligible for coverage through their employer, Medicaid or Medicare will qualify for subsidies to offset the expense of their monthly premiums. Don't let rumors or misinformation prevent you from exploring your health insurance opportunities. There is more assistance for families who need help covering the costs of insurance than many realize.

At Bourbon Community Hospital, we are dedicated to making our community healthier. We know that healthcare reform and the Health Insurance Marketplaces can be confusing and overwhelming. We are here to support you in exploring your coverage options, completing a Marketplace application and determining in which plans your local healthcare providers are included.

You can reach us in several ways:

- ✉ Call us at 1-888-982-9144. You can speak to a Certified Application Counselor over the phone or make an appointment for an in-person visit.
- ✉ Come see us. Appointments are available Monday-Friday during normal business hours, and by appointment after hours and on Saturdays.
- ✉ Send us an email at Bourbon.CAC@lpnt.net. We can schedule an appointment or answer your questions.
- ✉ Visit our website at www.BourbonHospital.com. You can easily access helpful information, including a check list of the documents you will need to enroll for insurance.

Fiscal court connects dots on Flat Run "Project Playground"

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

The Harrison County Fiscal Court took "Project Playground" to its minimum goal to get started when it approved a $25,000 appropriation at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

Rebecca McCauley and Codye McCann appeared before the fiscal court on behalf of "Project Playground."

Several local parents recognized that Flat Run Veterans Park lacked playground equipment for children under five years old, McCauley said.

The existing playground equipment at the park is designed for children age six and above, she explained. The equipment sits too high for very small children to safely use.

In recognition of this need, several concerned parents took matters into their own hands and began a fund-raising campaign to create a smaller children's playground at the park.

"This project has been a learning experience for us all," McCauley said. "We had no idea how expensive good playground equipment can be."

McCann presented a poster display that broke down the costs of each piece of playground equipment. One swing, including mounting and surface installation, costs an estimated $625. A spring mounted animal for kids to ride was listed at $550, a teeter-totter at $800. Larger pieces of equipment that small children can climb on can run as high as $13,000.

These are the costs for the equipment that lasts, McCauley said. The equipment is also ADA-approved for use by children with disabilities, she added.

The Project Playground group set a goal to raise $40,000 for the project. Since starting their local campaign, organizers raised over $15,000.

The effort has received support from local businesses and companies, civic organizations and numerous private contributions. Those donations have come from more than just families with children under five.

"We have received support from people of all ages. They all recognize the greater value that this type of playground has for the community," McCauley said.

Their purpose in coming before the fiscal court was to ask for additional support for the project.

Magistrate Frank Henson, who also serves as a county representative of the Cynthiana-Harrison County Parks and Recreation committee, expressed his personal support of their goal.

"I only ask that you continue your efforts in other projects after this one is done," Henson said.

Judge-Executive Alex Barnett said there was room in the current budget to make a substantial contribution to "Project Playground."

Missy Lutz made the motion, seconded by Paula Taylor, to allocate $25,000 to the "Project Playground" effort with the additional stipulation that the organizers continue to adopt new fundraising projects to enhance the quality of life in Harrison County.

The donation helps "Project Playtground" meet its goal.

In other business:

- Magistrates approved the 2014-15 jail budget.
- Harrison County Spring Clean-Up is scheduled for April 23 - 27. It will be a free dump week.
- Approved participation in the reverse auction for road salt for 2014-15.
- Barnett signed a proclamation declaring March American Red Cross Month.
- Henson reported that Parks and Recreation accepted the donation of protective window coverings at the City Gym. The donation paves the way for an indoor soccer season next winter, Henson said.
- Agreed to advertise for bids on the lease for farming land at the far end of Flat Run Veterans Park.
- The fiscal court changed the date of its budget workshop meeting to Wednesday, March 19, at 5:30 p.m.

Sadly missed by your family

Thank You

The worse night of mine and my families happened fast and in an instant, helplessly sitting in our truck watching everything we worked so hard for go up in flames. We lost everything, but we made it out alive is all that truly matters. Thankfully we live in a community that not all hope and faith is lost. Thanks to the firefighters, everyone in this town, Red Cross, all the staff at my girls school Westside Elementary and to all the employees at STI and to Benny and Mattie Northcutt for making sure we have clothes, food and shelter. From the bottom of the Hughes families hearts, we thank you.

With thanks, The family of Bob Lenox

Watson

Christian Church in Lexington.

Watson loves this ministry. Dresses from past proms are donated to Cinderella's Closet for teenagers who have limited means to afford their own dress.

The church decorates itself as a department store and prom dress boutique, complete with an area for jewelry, cosmetics and shoes.

Watson is one of four seamstresses who lug their sewing machines to the church every year to alter the dresses to each teenage girl's specific measurements.

"It's a wonderful ministry and a delight every year," Watson said. "The dresses are beautiful and the girls are so excited when they fit in them so well."

When her daughter told her about Cinderella's Closet, Watson didn't even think about the time or effort involved. Nor are the teenagers aware that their dresses are being altered by a professional seamstress whose work at one time earned national recognition.

Indicative of her personality, the 2013 winner of the Clarence Horn Humanitarian Award does not brag much about her years of community service. Typically, she doesn't think much about it at all.

The youngest of seven children, Watson just naturally seemed to inherit tasks. Married with three children to raise, it fell on Margaret to provide most of the care to her aging father.

Though, thankfully, her father and mother were always of sound mind throughout their lives, her father deteriorated physically as he aged and needed extra care.

"There are aspects of my life that have been a rough road," she said. "I've never asked the Lord 'why,' but I have asked 'how much more?'" she said.

Looking back on her years growing up, Watson said that she depended a great deal on the kindness of others. Her mother worked as a housekeeper for several Cynthiana families. Her father was a farmer for as long as he was able, she said.

"With seven children, and me the youngest, we didn't have much," she said. Most of her clothes were hand-me-downs of hand-me-downs from her older siblings. She also got clothes from the families for whom her mother worked, Watson said.

"When I think about it now, I wore pretty nice clothes as a kid. My mother worked for some very nice families in town and they were good to us," she said.

But it took a little while to appreciate it, she said.

For reasons only known to Him, she is convinced that God meant her life to be one of service.

"I believe God expects us all to serve others in some way," Watson said.

Though best known for her sewing work, she has made ends meet in other ways as well. Because of her organizational and math skills, she was a bookkeeper for several Cynthiana businesses.

She also spent several years as a babysitter in the days before there were organized daycare services.

"It was perfect work for me at the time because I could sew at the same time as care for children. At the height of my sitting, I had about 25 children," she said.

Lunch time in her home during the week looked like an army mess hall. The comparison is apt, she said, because she had a very specific daily routine for the children to follow.

"I expected the children to behave and explained to the parents that I was firm. I let kids be kids, but they couldn't just go wild," Watson said. "I would call them down when I had too."

It is Watson's capacity for being both loving and firm that makes her an excellent director of the Harrison County Food Pantry.

At least, that was the opinion expressed by all those on the toasting, or roasting, panel during the Humanitarian Awards program.

Marilyn Wash, Watson's longtime partner at the Food Pantry, said it best. "When Margaret says 'no,' she means 'no.'"

Adding to her comments, Watson said, "I have come to appreciate how important it is to be firm with people, even when you're trying to help them. They still have to follow rules and meet our requirements," she said.

If there was ever anything that God called her to do, she said that God called her to this work.

"It sometimes blows my mind how supportive this community is of the Food Pantry. It's God's work. It has to be because I have seen how he works here and whom he uses," Watson said.

There is a couple, she said, who have received benefits from the Food Pantry in months past. They are back on their feet, she said, but they still live in poverty. Yet, when they can, this couple will send a check for $10 to support the pantry's work.

"Things like that make our work at the Food Pantry so worthwhile," Watson said.

More than just a resource for families having hard times, the Food Pantry is a ministry. Many are the times when people come to their door needing more than just a box of food.

"There are times when we have had turn down people because they have already used up their share. But we always have time to go to a room and pray with them.

Sometimes they just need someone to hear their sorrow and let them know they aren't alone," Watson said.

Regarding the recognition that the Harrison County Service Unit of the Salvation Army gave her with the Clarence Horn Humanitarian Award, Watson said that she is very honored and humbled by the recognition.

"I'm not a perfect person. People know that I have had a terrible temper in the past and there are plenty of times when I have had to apologize for my behavior.

"The thing I have tried to do in my life is to let people see Jesus in me. It is He who deserves this honor more than me," Watson said.

Living

Skunked again!

From time to time I see a skunk meandering around the farm during the day, it's unusual, however.

A few years back there was one that was sniffing about under some pines in the lower pasture and it was evident from its movements and from its awareness (or lack thereof) of its surroundings that this creature knew it had the advantage.

Their eyesight is poor so sneaking up on him to get a photograph was possible but it made me realize that startling a skunk is probably not a good idea.

Skunks are mostly nocturnal, nomadic and solitary...except during their mating season, which has begun.

We don't see them too often, except as road kill, but when we do, it can be memorable.

When it comes to the stripped skunks in our area, their general behavior consists of sleeping in some sort of den during the day.

We have had skunks at the farm take up residence in old fox dens, ground hog holes and in the barn (where something dug a hole underneath an overturned row boat years ago).

Skunks are typically active from dusk to dawn, which is a little odd because of their poor eyesight.

They have a good sense of smell, however, and rummage around at night for a meal of small rodents, grubs and other meaty insects.

A rotten stump with a host of living creatures working to expedite the process of decay is a treat if you are a skunk.

This nocturnal skunk behavior mimics our Great Pyrenees and Maremma behavior, too.

They become alert at dusk and begin their patrol of the farm.

Unfortunately, this offered a great opportunity for the three to meet because Finca and Baxter were thoroughly soaked in that undeniable skunk funk one morning last week.

These dogs do not come into the house so we will let nature run its course at de-skunking them.

Males are polygamous so the females end up being the sole caregivers of their litters that average one to eight babies.

Baby skunks, called kittens, are born in April and May after a gestation period that lasts about 63 days, so if you do the math most skunks are pretty busy right now.

Here are some things

Jeneen Wiche
Columnist
www.SwallowRailFarm.com

to be aware of if you know you have skunks in your area.

•Skunks have abnormally large musk glands on both sides of their rear end. The musk has an oily component to it so it sticks.

•Skunks have amazing accuracy when it comes to fending off those that threaten them. They can hit their mark perfectly at six feet; and have generally good aim up to 20 feet.

If you come across a skunk and she starts stamping her front feet, run.

Just before they release their musk, they give a warning stomp, rise up on their front legs, lift up their rear and bull's eye, you've been skunked.

If you receive a direct hit it is not comparable to the general skunk smell. Rather the stench is a combination of burning rubber, sharp, fresh garlic and a little sulfur.

The animal lives up to its Latin name, Mephitis mephitis, which translates as "bad odor, bad odor."

One skunk season we were held hostage in the house at night because we would smell a skunk out there circling as they rummaged in the mulch.

We would go from window to window trying to catch a glimpse of it. Their stripes are quite distinctive, some almost non-existent while others look nearly all white.

Males roam about (and get hit by cars at a much higher rate this time of the year) quite a bit during mating season but females usually stay within a half a mile of their den.

This was the year Buck got a direct hit to the face that sent the old red heeler mutt on a desperate attempt to rub it off; he effectively spread the oil all over the driveway and garage door stoop.

We bathed him in Dawn, peroxide and baking soda multiple times before it was even bearable for us all.

If you do get a hit, the mixture is a quarter cup of baking soda, 2 tablespoons of Dawn dishwashing detergent and a pint of peroxide. Use it right away and it will work better than most other concoctions.

Climbing the Hill Mountain

It was my third week of not selling books my first summer of college. I arrived at yet another house on a street that required climbing 10-12 steps to reach the elevation of the yard.

Already sweating before lunch, I climbed the steps and walked across the yard to the front door. I placed my green bag of unsold books next to the door, rang the doorbell, and took four steps back—just as I had been trained.

The only noise I heard was the rattling of a chain coming from around the house.

My heart was soon aware that nothing good could be at the end of something requiring a chain, yet I remained frozen. Blankly staring at the door, I caught a glimpse of a black, growling animal turning the corner of the house at a high speed.

In a single second, I calculated that there was not time to grab my bag; there was a chance I might die. I fought off the urge to release the orange juice and water in my system and quickly threw my body to take three long strides toward the street and dive limb-over-limb down the hill.

With breaths coming more rapidly than my thoughts, I began to collect myself on the sidewalk below. I slowly climbed back up the hill. As my eyes reached high enough to see the former battlefield, a black Doberman paced between a small bush and the green intruder now perched by the door. A few more loud growls were offered ... and then silence.

The silence was a relief for a moment. My new “best friend” slowly walked to the bag, raised a left rear leg and baptized all my unsold goods.

I slumped down the hill in temporary defeat. Eventually, I crept back up the hill multiple times until the territory was surrendered. With one desperate spring, I retrieved the bag. Now I was left to find a good hose before taking on the next hill.

Wintley Phipps, the talented singer and pastor, tells a story of “an ol’ Southern Black Woman who had more sense by accident than most of us have on purpose” sharing invaluable wisdom with him about facing difficult times.

She told him, “If the mountain were smooth, you couldn’t climb it.”

I think if Abraham, Moses, Elijah, and the disciples could tell us about climbing mountains, their wisdom would not be much different.

I find my life’s happiness is not found most often in how smooth the mountain is, but my gratitude for the gifts God has given me to climb it. I hope all of us can find the strength to climb as God leads us. And if you pray for relief...be specific.

The joy of being a sinner

Every once in a while, like 20 or 50 times a day, I wonder if I’ll ever get better.

I wonder if my faith will ever grow deeper or stronger, if I’ll ever have more passion for God, more desire for holiness.

Sometimes I think I must surely be the sorriest excuse for a Christian in the history of Christendom.

Sometimes people ask me when my next book is coming out, and I tell them probably never. I explain that the publishing market has changed dramatically, which is true, and that people don’t buy books the way they used to, also true. I tell them that maybe God has me in Time Out, which may also be true. That happened once before when I was full of arrogance and pride and God let me embarrass myself publicly. I don’t know if I got any better while I was in Time Out, but ever since I’ve been scared to be arrogant — I still am, but now I’m scared when I am, which might be progress. I don’t know.

But the real reason that I am not writing any more books is that I’m waiting to get better, for my faith to grow deeper, for me to have more passion for God, for my lukewarmness to heat up. I’ve been waiting for a while now.

Times like this, when I wonder if I’ll ever get better and be usable for God, I remember a pastor I met years ago.

When she was younger, she joined with a traveling evangelist and went all over the country preaching seven days a week. Eventually, she burned out and also became disillusioned by some things she witnessed, “phoniness behind the pulpit,” she said, and left the ministry for a while.

During her “time out,” she got caught up in a cocaine whirlwind, using and selling. Here’s the best part of her story: The whole time she was getting high, she was also sharing the gospel and praying with her druggie friends who would come to her with their spiritual questions.

She never stopped her ministry; it just took a different route.

One day during a five-day high, she was pulled over by the police. She said that’s when she came face to face with the mercy of God. Even though she had cocaine all over the seat of her car — and a gun — the officer let her go.

That scare was enough to shake her up, and eventually she stopped using drugs and returned to full-time ministry as a pastor.

What I love most about her story is how, even when she was high, God still used her to minister to others. She “had church” even when she seemed far from God.

You may disagree that God can use someone who is steeped in sin, and no church should allow an adulterous or illegal drug-addicted pastor to lead them. But that’s not the point I’m trying to make here.

I’m talking about how God uses sinners, for that’s what we all are, to reach other sinners with the gospel of grace, and he doesn’t wait until we reach a certain level of sinlessness.

Even the Apostle Paul, the greatest Christian who ever lived, called himself the “chief sinner” (1 Timothy 1:15).

A few months ago, I came to church early and sat in the parking lot debating stuff with myself. Without a whole lot of faith, I asked

God to please show up for me, telling him that I needed his mercy in my life, because without it I’m toast.

Frankly, I didn’t expect him to answer my prayer, because I felt I didn’t deserve it. But he graciously humbled himself and showed himself in so many ways, but most personally in the songs we sang: “If you tarry till you’re better, you will never come at all...Not the righteous, not the righteous; sinners Jesus came to call... Let not conscience make you linger, nor of fitness fondly dream; all the fitness he requires is to feel your need for him” and then finally, “He has washed us with his blood.”

The truth is, if I tarry till I’m better — well, I’ll never be “better enough.” I will always have need for improvement.

Even so, just as I am, wherever that may be in my spiritual process, God can use me. After church that night, with the hymns still echoing in my mind, I hugged my bulletin all the way out to my car. God is so good.

Farming

Caring for newborn calves

By GARY CARTER, Co. EXT. AGENT

As calving time approaches the cow due to calve needs to be watched closely for any complications.

Cows and heifers should calve in a clean, dry, grassy lot or a clean, well-bedded pen. Pens should be square and should provide 150 to 200 square feet of space; they should have good lighting and ventilation but be free from drafts. Beef cows can calve outside if a windbreak is available. The newborn calf should begin to breathe shortly after the umbilical cord breaks. Mucus around the nostrils should be removed. Do not pound on the calf's chest or lift it by the rear legs since this can do more harm than good.

Shortly after birth, the navel cord should be dipped (not sprayed) with a seven percent tincture of iodine solution. (Do not use teat dip or weaker iodine solutions.) The cow should be allowed to lick the calf after delivery. In cold weather or if the cow does not lick the calf, the calf should be dried with clean cloths. This practice not only dries the calf but stimulates the calf's blood circulation. Generally, dairy calves are removed from their dam shortly after the dam has licked the calf clean (within one hour).

Early Colostrum Intake = Survival

Colostrum is secreted by the mammary gland shortly before and after calving. True colostrum is obtained only from the first milking. After the first milking and for the next two and a half days, the cow's milk is called transition milk. Colostrum provides a calf with its primary source of nutrients.

True colostrum contains twice as much dry matter and total solids, two to three times as many minerals, and five times as much protein as whole milk. Colostrum also contains various hormones and growth factors that are necessary for growth and development of the digestive tract. Colostrum is lower in lactose, thus decreasing the incidence of diarrhea. Milk obtained after the first milking is inferior in quality to the first milking and should not be fed to the newborn calf as colostrum milk.

Calves are born with little defense or immunity against disease. They acquire resistance to disease from their dam through timely and adequate intakes of high-quality colostrum, their mother's first milk. Calves that do not receive adequate amounts of quality colostrum early in life are more susceptible to diseases. Holstein calves should be hand-fed five to six pints or three quarts of good quality colostrum within an hour of birth and again within 12 hours or the next regular feeding. (Feeding six pints of colostrum will not cause a Holstein calf to get scours.

The amount of antibodies absorbed is related to the timing of colostrum feeding after birth. Within six hours after birth, the ability of the gut to absorb antibodies decreases by one-third. By 24 hours, the gut can absorb only 11 percent of what it originally could have absorbed at birth. Also, at 24 hours of age, digestive enzymes break down and digest all of the antibodies.

NAP deadline is March 15

The USDA Farm Service Agency's Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) provides financial assistance similar to crop insurance to eligible producers affected by natural disasters. The upcoming deadline to file an application for natural disaster protection under the NAP is March 15.

The crops for March 15 deadline are: Asparagus, beans, beets, broccoli, cabbage, cantaloupe, carrots, cauliflower, celery, corn, corn-hybrid seed, cucumbers, eggplant, garlic, gourds, greens, herbs, honeydew, leeks, lettuce, okra, onions, parsnip, peas, peppers, popcorn, potatoes, pumpkins, radish, sorghum, sorghum-grain, soybeans, squash, strawberries, sunflowers, sweet potatoes, tobacco-burley, tobacco-dark air, tobacco-fire cured, tomatillos, tomatoes, turnips, and watermelons.

Eligible producers must apply for coverage of non-insurable crops using Form CCC-471, and pay the applicable service fee at the FSA office where their farm records are maintained. The application and service fee must be filed by the application closing dates.

Applications require a service fee equal to $250 per crop per county or $750 per producer per county not to exceed a total of $1,875 per producer for all counties. Limited resource producers may request a waiver of the service fee. To qualify for an administrative service fee waiver, the producer must meet established criteria. For more information contact the FSA office at 234-2646. Many farmers qualify as limited resource and obtain free coverage for their crops.

NAP coverage normally begins 30 days after payment of fees and continues through the expected harvest period. Accepted applications provide catastrophic protection for loss levels that exceed 50 percent of the approved yield for the crop unit. A unit includes all the crop acreage in the county in which the producer has a unique interest. Loss payments are calculated on 55 percent of the average established market price for the covered crop.

Producers with NAP coverage are reminded to file a notice of loss within 15 days of a natural disaster affecting your crop or when the loss becomes apparent.

Contact your local FSA office for additional NAP closing dates. Producers should always check with their local FSA office for specific crops and other application closing dates.

Livestock producers affected by severe weather urged to keep good records

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) Administrator Juan M. Garcia, repeated his appeal to livestock producers affected by natural disasters such as the drought in the West and the unexpected winter storm in the upper Midwest to keep thorough records. This includes livestock and feed losses, and any additional expenses that are a result of losses to purchased forage or feed stuff. "The 2014 Farm Bill provides a strong farm safety net to help ranchers during these difficult times," said Garcia. "We'll provide producers with information on new program requirements, updates and signups as the information becomes available. In the meantime, I urge producers to keep thorough records. We know these disasters have caused serious economic hardships for our livestock producers. We'll do all we can to assist in their recovery."

In addition to western drought and the early-winter snowstorms, there are a variety of disasters from floods to storms to unexpected freezes. Each event causes economic consequences for farmers and ranchers throughout the United States. FSA recommends that owners and producers record all pertinent information of natural disaster consequences, including:

- Documentation of the number and kind of livestock that have died, supplemented if possible by photographs or video records of ownership and losses;
- Dates of death supported by birth recordings or purchase receipts;
- Costs of transporting livestock to safer grounds or to move animals to new pastures;
- Feed purchases if supplies or grazing pastures are destroyed;
- Crop records, including seed and fertilizer purchases, planting and production records.

Visit www.fsa.usda.gov or an the FSA county office at 103 Rodgers Park Dr. to learn more about FSA programs and loans. For information about USDA's Farm Bill implementation plan, visit www.usda.gov/farmbill.

Fillies lose to Clark County in opening round of regional 64-42

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

"They came out hard and aggressive and we just couldn't match up with them," bemoaned Harrison County Coach Kim Furnish. "I have seen them play several times this year and they are getting better and better."

This is what the second year Fillies had to say about the George Rogers Clark Lady Cardinals after the Harrison County girls had lost the opening round of the regional to the Lady Cards 64-42 Wednesday night.

The game was actually never close after the George Rogers Clark squad scored the first 12 points of the game.

A basket by Jordan Doram made it 12 to 2 with about three minutes to play in the first period. However, the Lady Cards stretched the lead to 13 points before Chelsea Ingram hit a three to make the score 15 to 5 at the first break.

Doram and Ingram were the only players to score in the first half for the Fillies. They managed only 11 points in the half while George Rogers Clark ran out to a 34 to 11 first-half lead.

"They defended Jordan very well in the first half," noted Furnish. "We did not do a very good job getting her the ball from the wing."

Harrison County battled hard the entire game against a superior force.

The third quarter saw the Fillies rally to score 15 points but the Lady Cards posted 19 to increase the lead to 53 to 26 going into the fourth period.

Harrison County outscored George Rogers Clark in the fourth and final period but it was much too little much too late as the Lady Cards posted the 64 to 42 win.

They will go on to face Mason County who defeated Bishop Brossart 42 to 27 in the night's first game.

Harrison County ended the season with a 12-19 record.

The leading scorer for the game was Doram, who posted her 20th double double of the year with 26 points and 12 rebounds. Ingram was also in double figures with 10 points.

Doram's Wednesday night performance places her fifth in all time scoring at Harrison County with 2,270 points and first in rebounds with 1,483.

After the game, Furnish wanted to talk about her two seniors.

"We were fortunate to have two outstanding leaders in Jordan and Haley (Perkins) this year," said Furnish. "They have been role models for the other players and will take a lot to replace next season. I have been really lucky and proud to be able to say that I coached them."

Breds fight to very end in regional semis

By Josh Shepherd, News Writer

D.J. Jenkins' rousing last second shot to tie the game at halftime gave notice to Campbell County that the Harrison County Thorobreds were going to fight to the very last minute in the semi-finals of the 10th region tournament in Mason County Monday night.

True to their promise, the Thorobreds trailed by only four points with 30 seconds left in the game. Unfortunately, the shots stopped dropping and the Camels stretched their lead at the free throw line to a 63-53 victory.

The Thorobreds still managed to make their final bow of the 2014 season a memorable one. Senior Dillon Pulliam was the first to foul out of the game after a 14-point scoring effort and four rebounds in 31 minutes of play. Mason Richie followed Pulliam to the bench having added six points of his own.

Soon afterward, Jenkins, who scored a game-leading 19 points, committed his fifth foul. By then, Campbell had sealed the win from the free throw line.

Last to leave the court was senior Grant Carr, one of the only starters who managed to avoid fouling out. Fan's gave Carr an appreciative ovation when head coach Larry Kendall called the senior to the bench.

While the Thorobreds were denied an opportunity to play for the championship, at no time during the game were the Breds ever out of it.

It did, however, take several minutes for the Breds to warm up.

Campbell County took a 7-0 lead to start the game. It took a baseline three-pointer from Richie to get the Breds offense warmed up.

Two minutes after that initial score, Dillon Pulliam went on a scoring run, nailing a two from just inside the three point arc, forcing a turnover and scored again to tie the game at 9 with 2:09 left in the first.

The situation got even better for Harrison County when the Camels' Deondre Jackson committed his second foul just before the end of one. The first quarter ended with Campbell County leading by a shot.

Both teams played very slow half court ball. Harrison's zone defense caused turnovers and forced the Camels into some ill-advised shots from long range. But the Breds hurt themselves with weak defensive rebounding. They gave the Camels too many second chances.

As a result, the Breds trailed through most of the half, though only by two points at most.

Pulliam tied the game at 19 points with a neat head fake that left him a wide open jump shot. But the highlight of the game was to come in the final 30 seconds of the half.

Campbell County's Trent McGovney drew "oohs" from the crowd with a blocked shot against Harrison, but no sooner had that happened when Jenkins collected the rebound and scored the hoop and harm with only a tenth of a second left on the clock.

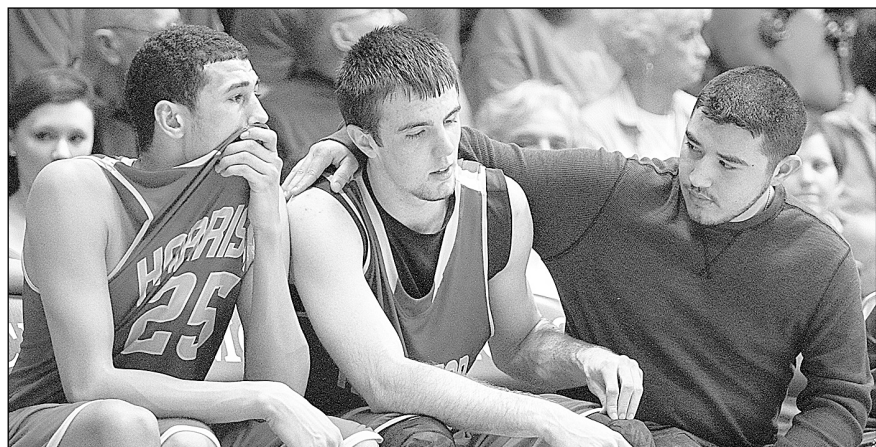

He buried the foul shot for an old-fashioned three and Harrison went into the locker room with a respectable comeback and a tied game at 24 points apiece.

Harrison's only lead in the game came at the 4:07 mark of the third quarter. Jenkins found an open lane to the basket for a 28-26 Breds lead. Campbell's Corey Holbrook answered the challenge with a three-pointer.

Harrison would challenge the lead once more when Carr neatly juked his defender and sank a bank shot to tie the game at 30.

Campbell answered with a six-point run to end the third.

The Fillies' 2013/14 season came to an end with a 64-42 loss to Clark County in the opening round of the girls' 10th Region Basketball Tournament. The Cardinals went on to win the whole thing, securing a spot in the Sweet 16 State Tournament.

Breds edge GRC to advance to Monday's semifinals

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The Harrison County Thorobreds improved their record to 15-16 Thursday night as they got by the George Rogers Clark Cardinals, 53-50, in the quarterfinals of the 10th Region Tournament.

The game, which was played in the Mason County Field House, was close throughout with seven ties and four lead changes in the game.

The hard-fought battle ended opposite of the way so many Thorobreds games have ended this season as the Breds battled back from a deficit and won a very close game.

The Breds led after one period as both teams approached the other with caution in this win-or-go-home battle.

The score after one quarter was a low-scoring 8 to 6.

The scoring picked up in the second quarter, but the tempo was not to Harrison County's favor.

The Cardinals' coaching staff looked to contain the Harrison County offense by limiting their shots. It worked in the first half as the Thorobreds only attempted 17 field goals.

The bright spot in the first half was the Thorobreds' foul shooting accuracy as they were able to make five of six tries.

George Rogers Clark led at the halfway point 22 to 21.

The third period was identical to the first two with the two teams battling back and forth.

The Cardinals increased the lead to three points by the end of the quarter, 34 to 31. Senior Dillon Pulliam scored eight of the 10 points scored by the Breds while George Rogers Clark had a balanced attack for their 12 points.

The fourth and final period began like the other three. However, with four minutes to play, the Harrison County squad found themselves behind, 42-35, which was the game's largest margin.

The Thorobreds coaching staff changed the pace of the game by applying a full court press against the Cards.

MIKE'S MINUTE

Is it time to line the court with security?

A couple of soccer notes before I get into my thought for the week.

Christian Carey signed to play for Northern Kentucky University of the Atlantic 10 last week.

It will be very challenging to play Division I soccer, but I am sure Christian is up to the task.

Also, Jeff Kinney has accepted the Fillies' soccer head coach position to follow Kim Jenkins. This is a great decision by the powers of the school system to bring on a man whom the girls like and will play hard for as well as respect.

Last week, a student from the University of California Santa Barbara ran onto the floor and confronted the University of Hawaii coach Gib Arnold as Arnold was disputing a call.

The student (fan) was only indentified as a senior at the California school.

Mike Aldridge
Sports Writer

The incident happened after Hawaii guard Brandon Spearman was called for an intentional foul and Arnold was disagreeing and discussing with the official who made the call.

The Rainbow Warriors and the Gauchos were having a closely contested, spirited game and emotions were running high amongst the fans in attendance.

Santa Barbara's coach Bob Williams stated that he was amazed at what had happened and apologized to Arnold for the incident.

In this case, an apology served the purpose, but so many bad things could have come of this the incident cries out for changes to be made.

The Hawaii players did push the fan away from their coach, but what if they had not been in control of their emotions and one of them would have punched the intruder?

A melee could have broken out, which would have put even an uglier face on the game.

One might ask "where was security?"

There were security people around, but no one expects someone to just run out on the floor.

Take our situation at Harrison County High School games. There are no better security people than Joe Nichols and Robert Walker. Bow Switzer also stands by the student section in most cases. However, what if someone on the opposite side of the floor decided to run onto the floor?

They would be on it as fast as humanly possible, but is that fast enough?

What have we come to in this country when a simple basketball game cannot be played without someone who is temporarily deranged accosting the coach on the floor?

I do not believe that this will ever happen here and if someone tried I feel sure that the situation would be diffused in short order.

But after one incident in college will there be copycats do it again?

The punishment for the Santa Barbara student had not been determined as of this writing. There have been calls for his expulsion to "let's see what his previous record is and act accordingly."

Expelling the student seems harsh but the potential harm that could happen when someone runs down onto the floor calls for swift and hard measures.

Let's hope that there are no repeat performances around the country as the college conference tournaments get underway and emotions rise to a fever pitch.

Breds

The press allowed for three Cardinal turnovers late in the game. which gave the Thorobreds a chance to take control of the game.

Harrison County reacted by putting together an 11-4 run which was topped off by a Trenton Thompson trey that tied the score at 46 all with 1:24 left in regulation.

The Cardinals' junior guard Damion King hit a pair of free throws to regain the lead for his team, but on the next Harrison County possession, the Breds patiently worked the ball for a Dillon Pulliam three pointer. This gave Harrison County the lead at 49 to 48.

Again King was fouled and made both free throws to allow the Cardinals to retake the lead with 50 seconds left to play.

There were 40 seconds on the clock when junior guard D.J. Jenkins slashed through the defense for a lay in that gave Harrison County the lead for good.

King missed on the other end and Harrison County rebounded and held the ball until Jenkins was fouled with 11 seconds left.

The calm and collected Jenkins made both charity shots to make the score 53 to 50. King's last-ditch effort struck the front of the rim and the Breds were in the semi-finals.

Jenkins led all scorers with 20 points making seven of 11 from the field and six of six from the foul line. Dillon Pulliam was also in double figures with 15 points.

The Thorobreds were out-rebounded 27 to 21 but made only nine turnovers to 11 for George Rogers Clark.

King and freshman Jerryd Jones each made 12 points while senior Riley Caudill came off the bench to add 11 points for the Cardinals, who closed out the season at 9-20.

THE BLUEGRASS PIPELINE MEANS KENTUCKY JOBS

Gerald Gibbs, Laborers Local 189

Matt East, Laborers Local 576

Sidney Pendleton, UA-Pipeliners Local 798

Steve Morgeson, Operating Engineers Local 181

WHO WILL BUILD THE BLUEGRASS PIPELINE?

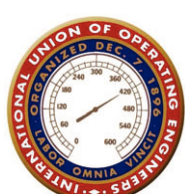

Your neighbors, men and women who live in the towns and farms along the route of the development.

They are the most highly trained, safe and productive workers in the construction industry. They will work for professional contractors who have safely built thousands of miles of pipeline projects across Kentucky and the U.S.A. with the best materials, engineering and technology available. The dedicated professional journeymen work every day like each project is on their street, farm or neighborhood, because it is. The Bluegrass Pipeline will not only create 1,500 construction jobs in Kentucky, but will create opportunity for our small businesses and suppliers. And after it is complete, it will create the possibility of industries coming to our community to utilize the products it carries.

So, please join with us in supporting progress, supporting communities, economic future and supporting good Kentucky jobs for Kentucky workers.

TO MAKE THIS PROJECT HAPPEN, WE NEED TO SHOW SUPPORT!

We, the Trades, and all of our friends and family need to demonstrate to our elected officials just how important this project is, and how much we want it to become a reality. Please take one minute to send a letter to your county executive, state representative and state senator. It's easy! Start by entering your name and email address in the form at www.kyworkersforbgp.com

LiUNA!
Feel the Power

Please contact your State Representative or State Senator to show support for the Bluegrass Pipeline and to oppose House Bill 31 by calling 1-800-372-7181.
